SPRINKLER WILSON'S Railroad bill does not somehow evoke a loud amen from the press of the State.

Tas Cincinnati Gazette of Saturday appears to be seriously alarmed at the growing wickedness of that city.

According to the New York Bulletin, the outlook is for a very firm market, and probably an advance, in iron.

The whipping post punishment for a certain class of criminals gets an additional boost occasionally from the newspapers.

Old Peter Cooper, of New York, was ninety years old last Saturday. He has had length of days in one hand and riches and honor in the other.

The Cincinnati Commercial of yesterday announces that an agitation is going on among the Catholics there in favor of dropping their special schools and patronizing the common schools.

Second sampling the vindictive Penitentiary the Legislature will do much. It is well, however, for the members to see such an institution occasionally.

Whenever a railroad company starts out to build a railroad in West Virginia they will make their own survey. They will not content themselves with a second hand survey made by some political engineer appointed by the State. Railroad men do not do business that way.

PARKERSBURG is persuaded that she needs more manufacturers within her limits, and she is right. Why not start the proposed factory for the manufacture of paper pulp? It strikes us that a great success could be made out of such a concern in a locality where there is so much good timber.

Like Senator Brown, of Jackson, Senator Bob Dennis dispenses light on his constituents as a newspaper correspondent. He writes a very readable letter to the last Greenbrier Independent. We observe that he is on the anxious bench in regard to the proposed amendment, and not altogether fixed as to the dog law.

"GATH," in his letter to yesterday's Cincinnati Enquirer, says: "The River and Harbor Bill at Washington, gives $200,000 to the Great Kanawha river, and only $100,000 to the great Pacific Ocean. It is said that one district of West Virginia got more money than all the taxes that State has paid the Union in five years. The Kanawha river is only navigable one hundred miles."

West Virginia believes in the "old flag and an appropriation," and if the River and Harbor bill gets through in its present shape, will receive the following amounts of money:

Shenandoah river, $2,500; Guyandotte river, $3,500; Elk river, $5,000; New river, $10,000; Little Kanawha river, $20,000; Monongahela river, $25,000; Great Kanawha, $200,000.

Who is to determine where Vice President Arthur was born unless his mother or the doctor are around somewhere to testify on the subject? Arthur himself was present, of course, but there is a mischievous link in his early memory that is deemed important. However he can fall back on the fact that it is necessary for those who deny that he was born in this country to prove what they say. He has that decided advantage.

Tas change in the weather on Saturday took everybody by surprise. I spoke asked in regard to the law, "If so soon I am done for, what was I begun for?" At no time this winter have the streets looked so bare and bleak as on yesterday, and certainly people have not huddled closer to the fires. It looks as if we may get another installment of hard winter. The change has had one good effect, to abate the swelling floods all over the country.

Tas long talk of marriage between the Baroness Burdett-Goutts and Ashmead Bartlett occurred, in England on Saturday last. She is sixty-seven years of age and her husband is only thirty-one. He is a Philadelphia by birth, but was educated in England, and for years has been the private secretary of the Baroness. More than forty years ago she received a legacy of $100,000, and has been known for her charities. She gives up an annual income of $750,000 in order to marry Bartlett, as that was the terms of the legacy, but has no doubt laid by enough to sustain her position in society.

It is important to remember that the Democratic party have in plain violation of the Constitution practically confiscated $127,500 of the school fund of West Virginia. They are covering up deficits that have existed for years—far back as 1873—with the school money, and they have done nothing to remedy the fact that the Constitution enjoins with the utmost plainness and particularity that a deficit shall be provided for immediately after it occurs, by such an increase in the levy as will pay it off, and notwithstanding also the fact that the Constitution further says that the school money shall be invested in "interest bearing bonds," and that the interest shall be paid to the schools every year, and shall not be used for any other purpose.

Puzzled Politicians.
New York, February 12.—An Albany dispatch says politicians are exercised over the discovery that Senator Robertson, anti-machine leader of this State, left for Albany on Thursday night, for Mentor, that they are taking him as a signal for the theory that he has gone there in consequence of a special invitation from the President elect.

Penitentiary.
HARRISBURG, Pa., February 12.—The twenty-sixth ballot for United States Senator today resulted as follows:

Beaver, 57; Wallace, 51; Bayne, 49; scattering, 5.

No choice. Convention adjourned.

INTERVIEWS.

WITH STANLEY MATTHEWS AND OTHER POLITICIANS.

Mathews on His Own and Others' Prospects—Garfield's Administration and His Cabinet—What Some Republican Congressmen Have to Say About Things in General.

New York, February 13.—Stanley Matthews, nominated for Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, was in the city yesterday. A Tribune reporter, according to Sunday morning's issue, met him in the lobby of a hotel, and made some inquiries concerning the political situation. Mr. Matthews said that he had been so often misrepresented, and his views distorted by political opponents, he had given up public utterance through the press.

"As to my inquiry concerning the incoming administration," said Senator Matthews, "I will say I know General Garfield will give the country a strong administration. I do not believe any party could present a man who will bring about such general satisfaction on all interests and sections as General Garfield will."

"Who will compose his cabinet?"

"I am certain Blaine will, for one."

The Tribune of Sunday morning prints talk with other Republicans, and Congressman Bedford, on the Speaker'ship, said: "We realize Mr. Hise's ability, but we in the West do not want New York State to have the Speaker'ship. Not because we are opposed to Hise personally, far from it, but because the Speaker has the appointing of all the Commissioners, and we do not think New York State should govern both Houses. Hise is very popular, and he will probably receive a very marked support. But the fight will be a bitter one, you must depend on that."

"Six thousand majority won't do it," said an ex-Congressman, and the member from Colorado to the Forty-third Congress, "I have just returned from Washington, and I tell you the fight for Speaker'ship will be a determined one. I am now living in Colorado, and we feel out there that the Government is neglecting too much for the East to the disadvantage of the West."

John C. New was asked, "What about Indiana and the Cabinet?"

"Indiana is a great State. I have no doubt she will not be ignored by General Garfield in selecting his cabinet."

"Will the Republicans be able to hold the State of Indiana during the coming elections?"

"Only by tremendously hard work. My State is a close State for such a large population. Six thousand majority won't do it, you must depend on that. Nothing but strenuous efforts will insure permanent Republicanism in Indiana."

Congressman Newberry, of Michigan, said: "The Democrats, although having good workmen in both Houses, have not succeeded in passing anything the Republicans did not want them to pass. This has been due somewhat to a want of harmony in their ranks, and to the thorough organization of our party and the brilliant leadership of Congress."

"Is a man who will be greatly interested in the next House. I believe he will be just as much of a power in the Senate, although not, perhaps, in the same way. I do not think there will be any bill of sufficient importance left over to require an extra session."

BANQUET AT BALTIMORE.
President Hayes Dined by the Press Association.

BALTIMORE, February 12.—At the banquet of the Baltimore Press Association to-night, C. J. Fox presiding, President Hayes responded to the toast, "Our Honored Guest, the President of the United States of America," and in the course of his address said: The press was one of the most potent forces. They heard upon all occasions that the success of the Government depended upon the character of the people and the character of the people upon education. There were many sources of education. There were schools, churches, theatres and many others; yet it asked to select the chief educational source of the people was the newspaper. It was not necessary, to speak of the schools especially of the schools of Baltimore; for, from what he had seen during the day, Baltimore was well provided for. He spoke of the common and high schools, and of the City College and Johns Hopkins University, which he believed would bring blessing and renown to Baltimore for years to come. Thanks should be given to John Hopkins and his friends who were carrying out his splendid plan. He was so from one end of the most important of the country. Baltimore had that educator, and her people had seen villages spring up, and barren places become fertile gardens without the aid of the educator, and it was so from one end of the country to the other, and across the continent. It was an educational agency, because it aids in extending good, and carries with it every good thing. But the newspapers were first. From the very first, the newspaper has been a good, and best was wisdom. The standard author spoke to a few, but the newspaper spoke to millions, and the standard author spoke to more people through the newspapers than he would through his books. For the newspaper takes all that is good, and gives it to the world.

There might be some rubbish and trash, but the pure stream of truth would soon leave it behind. On his visit to the Pacific Coast, he examined the hydraulic process of mining. Clay is brought up, but the gold is separated and particles gathered. These particles were carried to the mint and there made into coins, the best and most enduring currency. The truth of the newspaper was like gold, and would be eternal. He would, therefore, honor the man who would give his country a good newspaper.

The speech of the President was frequently interrupted by applause, and at its conclusion he was given three cheers.

Important Social Event.
WASHINGTON, February 12.—The invitations for the grand reception at the White House on the 24th, in honor of the Diplomatic Corps will be issued Monday.

The usual phraseology has been used in inviting gentlemen with "the ladies of their families," but it is understood that this phrase is to be more strictly limited to those really belonging to a family than to those who are invited as guests.

The only ones outside the actual family which are really staying with the family as guests at the time the reception occurred, and not all those they may desire to take with them. Even this will make a very large number, but the phrase "ladies" is not to be construed as referring to include any gentlemen, what ever daughters, sisters or nieces, and brothers and nephews are expected. The reception will be the closing social event of the present administration.

FALL OF LIMA.

Circumstantial Account of the Storming of the City.

New York, February 12.—By the arrival, to-day, of the steamer Athos, from Colon, the latest information concerning the fall of Lima has been received. The first engagement commenced on the morning of January 13. At 4 o'clock that morning the Chilian, concealed by a heavy fog, advanced in three lines upon the Peruvian position. Their approach to the latter was unobserved until the second Chilian line was within 400 meters of the enemy and their first line was engaged in hand-to-hand combat, which was continued two hours. The Peruvian center and right wing, being beaten, the left wing having retired to the Morro of the Chorrillos, maintained the fight until 4 p. m. The force was organized, and then compelled to retire on Miraflores, in order to do which it had to cut its way through the Chilian flanking force, which accomplished with a loss of many prisoners, among whom was the Minister of War. On the day of the water at Miraflores, the remainder of the Peruvian left wing, united with 6,000 of a reserve composed of young men of Lima, and here resisted the Chilian advance, firing from their redoubts and breastworks, and inflicting great losses on their assailants. The fight from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m., to the hour at which the Chilians entered the town, which was in the case of Chorrillos and Barranco, taken on the 13th, was reduced to ashes. The losses in killed and wounded in the two attacks are estimated at 9,000 Peruvian and 7,000 Chilian. The Peruvian loss in artillery, arms and war material is immense, and leaves the army of the center without means of carrying on the war. The Chilians entered Lima on the 17th without resistance, and established a local government, with Mr. Goda, former Chilian Minister to Ecuador, as Prefect of Lima. The capital is reported as quiet and orderly. The Chinese quarter in Lima was burned by the populace January 17th, on account, it was related, that the Chinese had refused to surrender to the Government, with Mr. Goda, former Chilian Minister to Ecuador, as Prefect of Lima. The capital is reported as quiet and orderly.
